U.S. companies doing business in Europe face many of the same, and in some cases more daunting, employment law challenges as those doing business here. These include labor unrest, increasing damages and penalties for discrimination claims, navigating workforce reductions through works councils and employment tribunals.

We invite you to a special 90-minute breakfast roundtable featuring a dynamic, interactive discussion among a small group of experts, in-house counsel and senior-level human resources executives. Speakers will include Lisa Mayhew, head of Jones Day's UK Labor and Employment Practice; Samuel Estreicher, Of Counsel at Jones Day New York and Professor of Law at New York University School of Law; Isela Morales, Senior Counsel, International, at CareerBuilder, LLC; and Sean Woodroffe, Human Resources at Sun Life Financial Assurance of Canada (U.S.).

Our discussion will highlight:

- Europe's growing regulation of executive compensation and benefits;
- The continued expansion of the scope of and remedies for Europe's discrimination laws; and
- The growing acceptance of U.S. litigation principles, such as collective and class actions.
