TOKYO

Since 1989, Jones Day's Tokyo Office has provided comprehensive and cost-effective counsel to businesses that face challenging legal and operational issues in the Japanese and international markets. On January 1, 2002, Jones Day began a new phase of service to clients by entering into a joint-venture arrangement (Tokutei-kyodo Jigyo) with Showa Law Office. Jones Day Tokyo consists of a team of U.S. and other foreign lawyers knowledgeable in the laws of the United States and other major international jurisdictions, as well as Japanese lawyers who have extensive international experience. The office also serves as the local window to the resources of the Jones Day worldwide network, one of the world's largest international law firms, giving businesses access to a broad range of legal experience in the various markets in which they operate.

Clients of the Tokyo Office include Japanese companies with complex legal needs outside Japan and multinational companies looking for representation with respect to matters in Japan and other Asia-Pacific countries. Our lawyers regularly advise clients on a wide variety of corporate, financial, and commercial transactions. In Asia-Pacific jurisdictions in which Jones Day is prohibited from directly representing a client, we supervise and coordinate the activities of specially selected local counsel to ensure that our high practice standards are met.
