Developing and Commercializing New Medicines: Do Patents Still Matter?

Please join us for a discussion of the role of patents in the discovery, development, and commercialization of life-saving and life-transforming medicines. Our panel includes executive leaders from the legal departments of three of the most exciting Bay Area biotechnology companies developing breakthrough medicines for unmet medical needs and the innovative technologies that enable their development. In the context of commercializing new medicines and their enabling technologies, our panelists will provide a real-world update on patenting opportunities and challenges, including updates on USPTO leadership and practice, PTAB proceedings, and Federal Circuit/Supreme Court case law.
