

UPDATE: Bill Eliminating New York's Annual Wage Notice Requirement Takes Effect

On February 27, 2015, 60 days after Governor Cuomo signed it, a bill (A08106C / S05885-B) became effective that amends the New York Wage Theft Prevention Act to eliminate the annual wage notice requirement. This means that moving forward, employers do not have to distribute annual wage notices to all employees.

The newly-effective law also increases penalties for certain violations of the New York wage law. More details on these changes can be found in our previous post by clicking here. Employers should evaluate any revisions that might be needed to their practices in light of this amendment.

This post was authored by Matt Lampe, Emilie Hendee, and Laura Jean Eichten of Jones Day. The views and opinions expressed herein are those of the authors and do not necessarily reflect the views of Jones Day or the New York State Bar Association.

---

Posted by Matt Lampe on March 3, 2015 12:02 PM | Permalink

SEARCH

---

Search this blog:

ABOUT

---

This page contains a single entry from the blog posted on March 3, 2015 12:02 PM.

The previous post in this blog was New York City Council Considers Legislation Limiting Inquiries into Applicants' Criminal and Credit Histories.

The next post in this blog is PROPOSED MINIMUM WAGE INCREASES ACROSS NEW YORK STATE.

Many more can be found on the main index page or by looking through the archives.

---

Subscribe to this blog's feed
[\[What is this?\]](#)

Powered by
Movable Type Pro 5.11